

Tired of using Fentanyl and other opioids?

Lethal doses of illicit opioids

Our mission is to serve people living in rural communities afflicted by the opioid epidemic. We partner with treatment programs that specialize in using Medication-Assisted Treatment.

What is Medication Assisted Treatment?

Medication-assisted treatment programs use medications like methadone and buprenorphine to help people stop using opioids off of the street.

These medications alleviate withdrawals, help suppress cravings, and support people making the changes required to end the cycle of addiction.

If you are ready to make this change today or know someone that is ready to take their first trip to Medication-Assisted Treatment, contact us today.
